Jennifer had such a huge heart, that she opened her home and became a foster parent. She was there for anyone who needed a hand, a shoulder to cry on or someone to go to advice for.
She had an infectious laugh which brought joy to everyone in her company. She was a person of many talents, including a small business owner for many years, a chef and carpenter by trade, and studied electrical techniques. She took great pride in her home, her garden and especially her children. She loved to cook and host family potlucks. She enjoyed harvesting and preparing her canned goods every year. She especially loved to be outdoors with her best friend Wilfred, from hunting to fishing, they were always up to something together. She is once again reunited with her best friend, Wilfred.

As per her final wishes, she asked to be cremated immediately following her passing. The family will host a come and go tea in the near future and a spreading of her ashes in the Spring.
